Titel (engl.): Approaches to Digital Media

Beschreibung:

Description:

The seminar "Approaches to digital media" has a special focus on the digitization of society. In particular, theory and analysis are concerned with the question of how institutions and different political actors position themselves in a digital society. Central questions of the seminar are among other things: What opportunities for participation and secure information offer a digitized society? How is the understanding of society, politics and community changing in a society characterized by deep mediatization?
